1 Just in time for the summer party season comes Aja, a new wine blend designed to match Asian cuisine. Created by business partners David Mulham and Mark Silcocks, the idea for the blend came from the pair's shared passion for wine and Asian food and the recognition of the confusion about what wine works best with the different Asian cuisines. Aja white wine is made from Hunter Valley Verdelho and Semillon, together with Sauvignon Blanc from the Adelaide Hills. It has an upfront fruitiness which complements a wide variety of Asian flavours. Aja is already on the menus of top Asian restaurants such as Longrain, Rambutan, Zafraan and Blue Ginger. The range also includes Aja Blush, a lower alcohol, lightly sparkling Moscato blush wine. Head to ajawines.com.au

2 New for busy chefs is Nestle Professional's new Peach

flavoured mousse mix, a mousse with the flavour and aroma of yellow cling peaches. The mousse mix is gluten free, with no artificial colours, and contains 36 per cent less fat than a peach mousse made the traditional way using sugar, cream and peaches. Plus it costs around 20 cents a portion. For more head to nestleprofessional.com

3 Step out in safe style with the new Forbo Step Pur range of sustainable slip-resistant safety flooring that combines safety, functionality, durability, low maintenance and creative flexibility. It's a good option for heavy traffic areas such as commercial kitchens, bathrooms, foyers and hospitality venues. Forbo Step Pur is easy to clean and its slip-resistant properties make it ideal for areas where liquid spillages are common. There are eight different ranges including new stone, star chip and wood designs with sustainable slip resistant ratings. For more head to forbo-flooring.com.au

4 Kahlúa has launched its newest flavour, Kahlúa Mocha. It's suitable for a variety of purposes, and goes well as a stand alone drink or in a cocktail. It has a medium deep caramel/ burnt russet colour, and the initial fragrance is of cotton candy and coca butter, which is more bittersweet than sweet.

5 The new Dyson Airblade hand dryer is the only hand dryer endorsed for use in food handling areas by HACCP Australia. It's been engineered to offer hand drying that's hygienic, fast, cost and energy efficient, and environmentally friendly. It's already being used by major companies including Yum Restaurant group (KFC) and McDonalds. For more see dyson.com.au
